Howe sees connections in Salvaged Remnants

SUE TIFFIN

Tiffany Howe won't be at her exhibition, Salvaged Remnants, at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery for the duration of the show, but with didactics on the wall showcasing her work the multidisciplinary artist told the crowd gathered at her opening reception that the unique way in which her art is displayed makes her feel "like I'm here in the gallery all month having a conversation with you."

Howe said the collection of work is about seeing the potential that things have, about the sentiment behind found objects and random materials, and about how artists communicate with viewers looking into the "art world."

Howe's interest in following the behind-the-scenes stories of "creatives" that share their artistic process online as well as her appreciation for a gallery visitor's potential intimidation by work left open to interpretation led to the didactics on the wall of her show, helping viewers understand both the evolution of her work and the process behind it.

"The exhibition is a slice in time of Howe's day," said curator Laurie Carmount. "Her public posts about her work leave as much of an impression as a paintbrush. Self-made videos of her creating her work connect with the viewer, and Howe offers approachable insight into her whimsical world, and encourages participation and involvement. Comments are added to the work like applique and become intrinsic."

At the opening, a diverse crowd was taking in the exhibition, in which Howe explores, in part, how people are attached to inanimate objects while also being wasteful, and how we might transform or upcycle items to avoid adding more to landfills in a time of resource scarcity.

"I've always been hyper aware of the wastefulness of our society," said Howe in her artist's statement. "For as long as I can remember it's deeply distressed me that we have industries that produce fast fashion, single-use products and planned obsolescence and the chemicals necessary to put out the massive amounts of these products and the environmental impact they have. It became an obsession to reuse any items in my life that were not recyclable."

She notes that that idea has grown "to become more about reusing objects that invoke emotion in people, the idea of nostalgia."

"So lately the pieces I'm exploring are about the emotions people attach to inanimate objects," she said. "We go to great lengths to keep insentient belongings with us – to travel with them, preserve them, make memories with them. They have no feelings and the purpose they serve is ephemeral, yet we cling to them, squirrel them away and love them. This behaviour has driven me to attempt to reconcile the gap between wastefulness and the impulse to hold onto nostalgia by keeping recognizable elements of the original materials in my pieces."

Salvaged Remnants, by Tiffany Howe, is open until Feb. 29 at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden. Howe uses an acrylic paint/medium based concoction with which she manipulates, coats and seals recycled denim and other recycled and found objects to explore the emotional attachment people have to inanimate objects, how to transform or upcycle garbage, as well as waste and resource scarcity./SUE TIFFIN Staff

Howe said she has determined there are three reasons why someone might hold on to something: for the sake of the environment, preventing more garbage; resourcefulness because of the cost of new things; and emotional attachment.

"It fascinates me," she told the engaged crowd. "Part of why I make what I do is because I relate to all three of these. In my materials explorations I've been investigating these ideas. It's very personal but I also know I'm not the only one who has felt the need to keep stuff. Otherwise there wouldn't be shows like Hoarders and [Tidying Up With] Marie Kondo."

After the exhibition opened to the public, Howe posted to Instagram when she'd had a couple of days to "let it all sink in."

"I'm so grateful to experience the privilege of sharing my work in this capacity," she wrote. "This exhibition communicates to the public the inner workings of my process, my journey, the motivations and thoughts behind the art."

Howe noted that the displayed didactics mimicking her social media feed invited the public in.

"Watching people read every one of them and interact with the work itself made my heart flutter," she wrote. "Having people tell me how this was the first time they really felt like they understood the art in a public gallery or were uplifted by my artist talk... I have no words for that feeling... So it's here now and the ideas of how to continue and grow this are racing through my brain a mile a minute." She advised her followers to "stay tuned."

Salvaged Remnants can be experienced at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery until Feb. 29. For more information visit www.mindenhills.ca/agnes-jamieson-art-gallery, howecreative.ca, or follow tiffanyhowecreative on Instagram or Tiffany Howe Creative on Facebook.

Common ground through history

KATE BUTLER
Special to County Life

THE STUDY OF history often seems to be a blend of the familiar and the seemingly unusual. It's been said that "the past is a foreign country," but that's also a two-way street. At first glance, it's hard for us to imagine what those who lived even 100 years ago would make of many of the things we take for granted as part of our lives today. Just imagine explaining mobile phones or social media to someone circa 1920!

That said, a lot of what we consider to be the essentials of a Haliburton County winter might not have seemed so strange to them. Today, many think of Haliburton as a hockey town and that certainly wouldn't have seemed odd to anyone who watched the Haliburton Huskies snag the Porter Cup three years in a row.

The squeals of delight coming from local toboggan hills would also translate well across the decades, as would the swish of skis or the sight of a good day's ice fishing catch.

Today, a jaunt on snowshoes might be seen as a recreation pursuit, but in the early 20th century snowshoes were also seen as efficient and vital transportation. For some, it was the only way to get into the main towns of the county with wares to sell or to pick up essential supplies to take back home. In fact, a trip from Harburn to Haliburton Village wouldn't have been uncommon. Today, in a car, the journey takes mere minutes, but historically, it could have been a 24 km round trip on snowshoes – while pulling a sled behind you! Of course, snowshoes were historically also used for fun, and our photo collection at the Haliburton Highlands Museum is rich with images of friends having snowshoe adventures, laughing and being silly, just as so many of us enjoy doing today. Many of the photos show the winter adventures of the Clarke and Gorrie families, captured thanks to Daniel Gorrie's Brownie camera.

This weekend, all around the county, people will be celebrating Family Day weekend, a holiday which may have a short official history on Ontario's calendar, but which I think our community's early residents would have been able to get behind.

The history of the Haliburton Highlands is filled with people who came to this area from other places, sometimes accompanied by family in the conventional sense, but also finding a different sense of belonging through community. Local histories often feature accounts of residents who went out of their way to look after neighbours and friends, so that more people could thrive in the rather challenging landscape that they found here. Visitors to the area today still often comment on the sense of community and welcome which they feel here, a feeling that makes them want to come back and sometimes even to settle here.

So, this Family Day weekend, however you mark the occasion, let's also celebrate our community and continue to focus on making it even better every day – something that I'm sure the early settlers of Haliburton County could understand.

While the residents of Haliburton County 100 years ago would likely have found our new technology baffling, there are some things that have stayed the same. Strapping on a pair of snowshoes to go for a jaunt across the snow is something we share with early settlers of Haliburton County. /Photo courtesy of the Haliburton Highlands Museum

Top 10 reasons for me to grow a hipster beard

THIS MORNING, it occurred to me that I've been wearing the same beard style for longer than most hipsters have been alive. It might be time for a new style that lets the younger generation know I'm dope – but not in the way my friends think of me. That's why I've been listing reasons for growing a long, magnificent hipster beard. Here are my top 10.

1. If they ever have casting calls for dwarves in a Lord of the Rings prequel, I'll be ready.
2. More material for comb-overs.
3. So long as I carry a comb, I'll never need to pack a lunch again.
4. It would go great with my wizard hat.
5. I'll finally have a good reason to buy shampoo and conditioner.
6. I could make weaves for middle-age Barbie.
7. People might finally mistake me for someone who is wise.
8. It won't matter if my tie has a mustard stain on it.
9. Fly tying material.
10. It could eventually be used to lower myself from second floor balconies.

Volunteer for the Daffodil Campaign

To the Editor,

At the Canadian Cancer Society, we know that cancer changes people. But we believe that a cancer diagnosis doesn't have to define who they are. We are committed to helping people live longer and enhancing the quality of life for all of those affected by cancer. We believe that life is bigger than cancer.

We are currently looking for two volunteers to help us lead our Daffodil Campaign in Haliburton and in Minden for one day in April. With the support of volunteers, we can help people with cancer see life beyond their diagnosis. When you volunteer, you're helping people live their lives more fully.

Money raised during the Daffodil Campaign funds ground-breaking life-saving research, support services for those living with cancer, and advocacy to governments on important cancer-related issues. Right here in the Haliburton and Minden area, the Canadian Cancer Society has helped 16 cancer patients make 94 trips to their lifesaving appointments for a total of 15,927 km.

We can't make the Daffodil Campaign a success without passionate volunteers! Join us by volunteering and together, we can prove that life is bigger than cancer. Take action now. Call me to volunteer at 705-726-8032 ext. 3223.

New Year's revolutions

Dial backwards by notches
Squint sideways through blinders
Hear when aspens quiver
And make that wind visible since
Who has ever seen it?

Reimagine the alphabet
Aim soonest for D
Visit long both J and R
Before Zs begin to settle since
They always do

Halt stomp to watch fog move
Stand still when the frost drops

Break marathons for a strong Earl Grey
Swatch keen sweet shadows with brown English eyes since
Each of two's a painter

I've framed my world with squares of fingers
This heart line, a simple pencil
Across pads of time
Make my Z as good as my A since
Then I'll be proud

Family secrets, deceptions and astonishing truths

Imagine seeing the ocean liner ticket of your great-grandmother when she first arrived in Canada. Or finding a record of your family dating back to the 1600s. And how would you feel if you discovered that a long-held family story wasn't completely true?

All this, and more, was uncovered over the course of SIRCH Community Services' Family Roots pilot program.

As part of Family Roots, senior volunteers were trained to conduct online family research while learning about community resources. The trainees were then matched with other seniors, who were more isolated or needing connection, to research their family history.

"Family Roots has been a rich and rewarding experience for all participants. Trainees have gained skills, and with their senior matches have fostered companionship and friendship," said Donna Gagnon, SIRCH's Family Roots co-ordinator. "There's been so many amazing discoveries along the way – from learning more about a family's country of origin, to finding long lost relatives. It's been fun and exhilarating!"

Participants want to share their experiences and discoveries at a public event.

SIRCH's Family Roots Reveal Night: Family Secrets, Deceptions and Astonishing Truths takes place Wednesday, Feb. 19, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Haliburton Highlands Museum, 66 Museum Rd., Haliburton. This is a free event, and all are welcome to attend. Light refreshments will be served.

"At the reveal night, you'll hear from a woman who discovered her Quaker ancestry, and about a 98-year-old woman who found out she had three half-siblings in England," said Gagnon. "In addition, you'll see examples of families that trace their roots back to France and Italy, and how they came to Canada and the Haliburton Highlands. You'll also hear about the connections made between trainees and their matches."

The Family Roots program is made possible by a grant from the Government of Canada New Horizons for Seniors Program, and is supported by the Haliburton Highlands Museum, and Haliburton Highlands CARP Chapter 54.

Haliburton County Echo

'The voice of the Highlands'

Second Section — Wednesday, February 18, 1976

One of the many new highlights of this year's Haliburton Winter Carnival which will be held this weekend - Friday, Saturday and Sunday, February 20-21-22 will be the appearance of the Labatt's Blue Balloon which will feature a Hot Air Balloon Flight over Head Lake on Sunday afternoon at 1:00 p.m.

Haliburton Winter Carnival where all the action is Haliburton is where the action will be this weekend and everything is set to go for the 1976 Haliburton Winter Carnival. Carnival chairman Ken Langdon of Black's Hardware and Furniture along with the rest of the members of the Rotary Club of Haliburton have been burning the midnight oil in an effort to come up with what we hope will be a weekend that will furnish plenty of fun and entertainment for old and young alike.

The big weekend will officially get underway at 3:00 p.m. on Friday with the Ice Sculpture display and judging and at the same time the 3 day Alcide Carpentier Memorial Pee Wee hockey tournament with 16 teams will swing into action at the arena. Friday night will also be packed with plenty of entertainment with the Torchlite parade from the High School to the arena at 9:00 p.m. followed by the Carnival Bonfire and Fireworks display at the Arena Fairgrounds at 9:30 p.m. The Teen Snowball Dance on this evening along with the crowning of the Carnival Queen will take place at the High School and there is also a dance at the Legion Hall with food and refreshments.

Saturday will be another fun packed day being highlighted by the Carnival Parade which begins at the Arena Grounds at 2:00 p.m. Also on Saturday plan to attend the Pancake Breakfast, Carnival Bonspiel and Pee Wee Tournament, Timed Drag Races, Helicopter Rides, Carnival Luncheon and Buffet at the Anglican Church, Carnival Bake Sale at Curry Motors Showroom, Sky Diving, Carnival Feast, Junior D Hockey game, and the Carnival Ball at the Legion Hall with George "Pappy" Ryan and his Ryanstone Band. H.H.S.S. Aeronautic Club Rocket Display at 12:30 p.m.

Now take a look at what's on tap for Sunday, Timed Snowmobile Rally, Free Horse Drawn Sleigh Rides, Labatt's Blue Balloon, Hot Air Balloon Flight, Helicopter Rides, Oval Races, Sky Diving.

We say welcome to Haliburton this weekend, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, February 20-21-22 and may your visit be one that will long be remembered.
